Welcome to 1996 FISTS! 1995 was a year of phenomenal growth for the North American FISTS group, it's wonderful to see how much support there is for Morse. And it shows no sign of letting up - I'm getting an average of one new application a day. The number of FISTS members who are actively getting involved in "spreading the Gospel According to Sam" (as Geo sez!) is growing also. Thanks to everyone for their support and I hope the KeyNote continues to be a newsletter you enjoy reading and contributing to! We cannot do it without you!

I need to start out by apologizing for all the typo's in the December KeyNote! As Brian tells me, I'm probably still not getting the proper amount of oxygen to my brain <G> I don't know how else to explain it! My New Years resolution to FISTS is to use my "spell-checker", no matter HOW much of a hurry I am in to get the newsletter to the printer.

Sorry to Dave Ingram for all the typos in his ad, they were my fault, not his, and not a reflection on his writing or books! Here's a list of Corrections and changes: Brian is still compiling the list of FISTS on Email. His address was incorrect in the Dec KeyNote. It should read "blafont@tir.com", I left the 'a' out.

Greg #2044 is N3FSC, not N3FS. Marty #2019 is KE4WCW, not E3WCW. John N9URB reactivated his original number 1483. Dave W8LRY is now AE4OM. The FISTS Dayton party is Friday night, not Saturday. Scott KE3NV is trying a new QSO Party on 7.058 at 2400Z on Sunday (7pm), not Saturday. Whew! On with the KeyNote.....

Continuing discussion on A Breath of Bad Air

Response from the author of the article in Oct Keynote

I was dismayed by Patti AF9H's letter regarding my article on poor sending in the October Keynote. At first I was concerned that I had poorly conveyed my point of view, but Geo's comment and the suggestion from Trevor G4IXI that the article "should be published more widely in the journals" went a long way toward restoring my self-confidence!

I'm sorry Patti was upset, but I believe that she read something into my comments that was absolutely not intended.

The article was focused (I thought) very specifically on individuals who are sending poorly formed or spaced characters but are unaware that there is a problem. There was no intention to criticize those who are physically impaired, and no intention to imply that we should all be capable of sending perfect code. But there is an increasing amount of very sloppy Morse on the bands, some of which simply cannot be copied even by a skilled operator. It's largely due to three factors:

There is a tendency (however caused) to try to send faster than one is really able. The answer to this is simply to slow down.

There is also a problem with "bugs" or semi-automatic keying devices. Tune across any HF band on any evening and you will hear "bad" Morse from improperly adjusted or improperly used bugs.

A third problem is directly related to the fact that a sending test is no longer required in this country. People pass a 13 or 20 wpm receiving test and believe they are competent CW operators. It's not entirely their fault — until they get on air nobody has ever heard them send!

All of these problems can be resolved — but only if the operator knows that there IS a problem! Hence the article and the proposition that we should not hesitate to politely suggest that some sort of adjustment is in order.

Patti suggests that patience will solve the problem. Patience is certainly required, and I would hope it is a standard trait of any CW operator; certainly of any FISTS member. But patience won't SOLVE the problem—it just helps you to hang in there until there is some sort of resolution. As my own Elmer would have said, "You can't learn anything until you know what you don't know!"

CW on 10 Meters or the lack thereof.....

by Jim Stoeber W19X #1544

Greetings FISTS from sunny Southern Illinois. This is my first FISTS article, so pls bear wid me.

We have a problem folks, and I need all of you to aid me in its solution. The problem here seems to be that our friends on eleven meters seem to believe that the bottom 325 khz or so of ten are just additional CB channels they can retreat to when they feel the need. Obviously this is not a new problem, as both the Mexican and American CBer's have been doing this for at least 10 years that I know of. However, I believe that it's time we start doing something about it, and this is where all you good folks come in.

I have been trying, with moderate success, to run these folks off by qrm'ing wid my CW keyboard. But I can't be in every part of the CW band at the same time, nor can I hear all CBer's that are infringing on our territory. This is where you come in.

The only time I find any good activity on the band is during contest weekends, and only then if the band is in decent enough shape. It's my goal to change that. My main approach to this is by trying to get the local folks on 10 CW, thereby keeping at least a little activity going while the band is asleep. It is my hope that many of you will follow my example in this. Then, at least, you won't have to worry about 40 M QRM or 80 M QRM. Besides, ten meter rigs are cheap and antenna size isn't overly cumbersome.

I was recently having a SSB QSO on ten wid a local boy when the band was seemingly dead. All at once, a KC4 jumped in es told us that we were running 10-20 dB over S9 in southern Fla. So wid that, who knows—we may just run into each other!

So my point? Get on 10 CW and use it! It's the ideal place to tutor folks working on CW upgrades, and Lord knows that the band could use the workout! Anybody wanting to contact me concerning this article can drop me a note via my callbook adrs or at (618) 257-1754. Any feedback wud be appreciated.
73 Jim W19X #1544

FISTS can't recommend intentional QRMing, but making use of the bands with legit QSO's is a terrific idea. Many "write off" 10 meters as dead, when as Jim points out, anything is possible, specially propagation surprises!

The Top Ten Reasons for Working Phone

10. You can work your neighbors at the same time, via their TV sets and telephones.
9. I can never think of anything to say on CW.
8. The Q codes sound really cool when you say them out loud.
7. My kids think I sound like Donald Duck on SSB.
6. Umm... I can't find my key.
5. On phone I can usually tell if the operator is of the opposite sex.
4. I can use either Upper Side, or Lower Side, or BOTH!
3. On phone if somebody has trouble copying me I can just turn up the mike gain and shout.
2. A phone signal occupies like a gillion times as much bandwidth as a CW one, so more people will hear me.

And the Number One Reason for Working SSB

1. I love the sound of my own voice, so let everybody hear it!

SUPPLIES

Irene WO8E just got a supply of 10,000 gold FISTS logo stickers, so if you've been waiting to order your stickers, now is the time! They are five dollars for 200 stickers (including postage). The logo pins are gold metal with blue enamel, about the size of a quarter and look like the stopsign logo on the masthead of the letter. These are $3.50, including postage. Her address is 25206 Hayes Roseville MI 48066.

Joe AA8HV has beautiful, heavy ceramic, cobalt blue mugs with the FISTS logo in gold metallic on both sides of the mug (so both you and someone sitting across from you can see the logo!) for $6.50 including postage. His address is 9614 Arden Ave Livonia MI 48150.

FISTS PhotoBook

We still need photos for the photobook. The second page is just about ready, hopefully it will be included with this mailing. The photo doesn't have to be anything special or professional. Black and white OR color photos will work fine. It just needs to be clear and have your face showing about one inch in size. The photo itself will be trimmed to fit, so it can't be returned. Send your snapshot to Ken WK8F, 25206 Hayes, Roseville MI 48066.

Interesting Talk by Professional CW Operator

from Boat Anchor news/submitted by Rich K8MEG

Our radio club tonight had as guest speaker Rod Deakin, ham and professional CW operator for the Globe Wireless station KFS in Half Moon Bay.

First, CW is emphatically not dead. The Coast Guard has phased it out, and U.S. ships don't use it, but there are about 150,000 ships around the world and most of them still use CW. U.S. ships are about 11% of them, so maybe 89% of the ships in the world use CW. KFS has the receiver site in Half Moon Bay, the transmitter site in Palo Alto, and also operates by remote control a transmitter and receiver site in Slidell, LA.

A competing company has sites in Bolinas and Point Reyes CA, and there is a third company up in Washington. There are perhaps 50 shore-based CW operators with these stations on the West Coast and somewhat more on the East Coast. Marine CW may not go on forever, but the end is not in sight.

Equipment: They have transmitters by Press Wireless that date back to WW-II. They have more modern transmitters using Henry amplifiers; and they are about to replace those amplifiers with other Henry amplifiers designed especially for their kind of service. Transmitters these days run 5KW. They used to use 10 KW but modern receivers are better than the old ones and allow lower transmit power. For receivers they use Kenwood R-5000s in scanning mode and some old Watkins-Johnson models for copying traffic. They are getting some new receivers made by TCI and some by none other than Ten-Tec. The new receivers are entirely ASCII controlled, have no front panel controls at all. They use ASCII control with the present receivers from Half Moon Bay to the Slidell site, which is operated entirely by remote control. T-1 lines connect Half Moon Bay with Palo Alto and Slidell. I didn't catch what kinds of exciters are used with the Henry amplifiers; might have been Harris. He uses a bug or a paddle driven keyer; no keyboard-generated CW. The received copy is typed on a computer keyboard. The monitor has a split screen, part for the message and part for the billing information. When they receive a message from a ship they transmit it to its ultimate destination by email, Telex, voice, fax or in some cases telegraph cable. For antennas they have log-periodics & something like discones. There's no point-to-point HF anymore so the big rhombics are gone.

In addition to CW they use SITOR and Clover. Clover uses the same modem board HAL sells to hams, but with very different firmware, intentionally incompatible with the ham version of Clover. They like Clover because of its speed and its ability to transmit binary files. These days there is a need to transmit software binary files to ships at sea. Big modern ships use INMARSAT; but there are many ships that still have HF radio as their only link to the rest of the world.

A description of the operation is rather complicated. There are bands of frequencies: 500KHz and then a band in the 4MHz region, one in 6MHz, one in 8MHz, and more. For each of these bands there is a primary and an alternate frequency; and there are these pairs of frequencies for five different regions of the world and a pair for worldwide. A ship calls on one of these frequencies. The shore station transmits on one of its frequencies in the same band, and tunes the receiver to a frequency in the same band told to them by the ship. The shore station transmitters are fixed frequency; the ship transmitters move off the calling frequency to handle traffic. The scanning receivers scan the calling frequencies, usually 500 KHz, the pair of frequencies for the local area of the world, and the worldwide pair of frequencies. Because of the remote site the operator is scanning that set of frequencies locally and also scanning the appropriate set of frequencies for Slidell. Operators can set things up any way they like; his preference is for Slidell in one ear and Half Moon Bay in the other. On CW ships use call signs rather than their names. The operators typically don't know much English; but many of the messages are of a fill-in-the-blanks nature, and then with Q signals and other universally understood signals they get by.

On a 4-hour watch he will handle typically 50 messages from ships. Some of these are position reports. Ships are required to report their positions and intentions every 48 hours. This information is passed to the Coast Guard free of charge. Ships also report weather every 24 hours and this is passed to NOAA free of charge. Other messages are mostly of a business nature and are charged for. Rates depend on the distance to the destination but might be 50 cents a word. All the rates are actually in gold francs, as an international currency. These business messages are typically to the ship's owners and report position, fuel on board, things needing repair at the next port, supplies needed, expected arrival times, and that sort of thing.

Another kind of activity is for medical problems on board; they communicate with a doctor on shore and get instructions for treating the sick or injured. Very few ships carry doctors, and only those with larger crews carry a nurse. Crew members have at least first aid and CPR training. Then there are all the weird kinds of things that can happen on ships; he gave an example of a crew member who killed another. They locked up the killer, put the corpse into a refrigerated container, and asked the ship's owners whether to bury the body at sea, head for the nearest port, or com plete the voyage and deal with the problem then.

Bringing a ship into port is about as involved as landing an airplane, except everything is much slower. In SF Bay the ship has to take on a pilot who is an expert at getting to the dock without running aground. If the ship arrives too early or too late it will miss its time slot for a berth and have to wait, just like an airliner having to wait for a gate. He told of one tanker ship that needed deeper water than SF Bay has even at high tide; so it had to anchor and off-load the cargo into barges. Lots of messages flew around as they dealt with that problem.

CW operation is typically at 18-25 WPM. The shore operators are typically very skilled; they love operating CW and got good at it because they wanted to. Many of the ship operators are awful. They operate CW only because they get paid for doing it and don't care about being good at it. He played a tape, just for laughs, of a particularly lousy ship operator.

Then Rod got to his hobby, which is the restored Liberty ship Jeremiah O'Brien based in San Francisco at Pier 32. Right now you can't go on the ship - even the volunteer workers can't go on the ship - because of the government shutdown. But in normal times it is open 7 days a week. The radio room is furnished with authentic gear of the period. For the $5 admission you can spend all day on the ship if you wish, and there are docents to answer questions. Every couple of months they have a live steam day when they don't go anywhere but do get up steam and you can see all the machinery operate. They will probably go on a voyage this summer, perhaps to Seattle.

A NICE DAY

by GUNNAR C. CARLSON AE4W

My wife Beverly WB5HEN and I bought a condo up high in the mountains of Ruidoso NM. We put up our tower and found we were in DX heaven! Beverly also got a new escape artist cat for Christmas. We named him Waldo Catanatch Stinker Snake rat Carlson. You'd better get outside quick and close the door tight or he will escape every time!

Beverly had left the day before to be with her mother who was hospitalized with congestive heart failure, and I was up at the crack of dawn on a cold 19 degree winter morning to fill the kerosene heaters and to check the ice on the antenna before calling CQ. I took the two heaters to the balcony to fill them, and of course I got out fast and closed the door tight. Damned cat didn't have a chance.

I was in a real hurry to get done as I was clad only in my bathrobe, slippers and headphones and it was mighty cold out on the open air balcony at elevation 7058 feet. It didn't take me long to finish pumping kerosene and discover that I was locked out!

I could see through the $225.00 double pane window (which I hoped I didn't have to break) and could see Waldo Catanatch Stinker Snake rat Carlson playing with my wedding ring which he subsequently hid so well I couldn't find it for four days.

A strong wind had whipped up and it was hard to think logically in the mind numbing cold, but I knew I had to do something fast because of the possibility of freezing to death and because I had left a pan on the stove (on high). Yelling for help from the neighbors in the next door condo was useless because their condo had been gutted by fire the night before and they had sought lodging elsewhere. The next nearest neighbor was half a mile away. I considered trying to get to them to call a ham friend who had a key to my condo. I wasn't sure anyone would open their door to a stranger in a bathrobe slippers and a headset.

Then, a light bulb clicked in my head! I knew how to get back in! OK then, the plan was to climb over the balcony guard rail, lower myself as far as possible, hand over hand, and drop to the ground. So there I was, hanging on the lowest rail, headphones on, wind blowing my robe, exposing my now light blue naked body, when my slippers fell off. The cars passing by sped up - none stopped to help. Except for the one that stopped to take several photographs and the one which ran off the road about three blocks down the mountain. The police report read "Driver was distracted when she saw a large semi naked man wearing headphones hanging bare footed from a balcony." My bare feet were still five feet above the bushes and new fallen snow when I released my grip and fell to the ground below. Bleeding now from several wounds, I went to the locked front door. I started to write a message in the snow for my beloved Beverly, but it would only melt before her return. Time for Plan Number Two. I was getting real sleepy due to the cold and because I hadn't slept for the last thirty hours because of the all night fire next door. I made my way, leaving a trail of blood in the snow for the newly reintroduced Mexican Wolves to follow, to the crawl space under the condo where I had a ladder.

Climbing back up on the balcony, I broke out the window in the door and let myself in. Not recognizing me, the dog made several threatening gestures toward my bloody legs and the cat escaped onto the balcony. Only a desperate grab of his tail kept him from leaping to momentary freedom and then certain death in the already bloody snow below.

After I stopped shivering, and wondering how to treat frost bite, I was able to call to Florida to see how my mother had done during her surgery that morning for a blocked esophagus. Later, I even went to the market for bandages and iodine. The clerk smiled and said, "Have a nice day."

What a story! Thanks for sharing Gunnar, and hope you're recovered and back to DXing!

Bits 'o News

Jim N8NLE won the QLF contest at his local club function "feet down". The entrants used a key shaped like a left foot to send Morse code. Jim supplied the key and the oscillator, so he was accused of winning because he was able to practice! Sounds like a lot of fun Jim - maybe you can bring it to the Dayton FISTS Party on Friday night and we'll have a FISTS QLF playoffs! (QLF is a joke-Qsign for sounding like you are sending with your left foot instead of your hand.) Michael KB8SBX has moved to a new QTH and is in the process of starting all over, putting together a new shack and antenna. Good news is, he has 3 acres of wooded lot in which to grow an antenna farm. Bad news is it took him two hours to find the box in which he packed his radio! Look for him on 80 meters!:

Lea AB5TY will soon (if not already) be on the air with her new 60 foot tower and 6-el tribander for 15-17-20 and a 2-el for 40 meters. I'm glad to hear you enjoy reading the KeyNote, Lea.

Many thanks to Charlie KA8OQF and Greg KG8UM for sending me their back copies of the KeyNote so I can start an archives. Don KC4UUG says he also has quite a pile of them, so I will be all set if I need a back issue - Thanks guys!

Thanks also to all who responded to the query about shack grounding. It was in the Sept 1994 issue.

I also hear from Charlie KA8OQF that the SE station at the Hamvention is going to be all vintage Collins, (how about THAT, Retro Radio Renegade, hi!)

Sunday QSO Party

Scott KE3NV has taken on the awesome task of hosting the Sunday QSO Party. Propagation is making it rough, and the people he can hear are others than the "regulars" who used to check in with Don KC4UUG. Believe me, he is not intentionally ignoring anyone and appreciates your patience! And thanks to those of you who relay the check-ins they can hear and Scott can't. On Dec 10, the check-ins were: WP2T (thanks for your help Maggie), KE4HZM, N1PVP, W4JTU, KS4UV, K4SV, KJ5TF/QRP, VY2RB, N3PM, AA2WG, NA8G, WZ8C (yes! I finally made it)WA0FGV, AA5MP.

Scott would like to welcome Bert W4JTU to the Party. He has been very helpful with relays. Also welcome to Lanny KB5VTB in Bellaire TX, He puts a whopping signal into Baltimore MD!

Dec 17, there were the same poor conditions. Check-ins: WP2T, N8FU, K7WF, W4JTU, KC4JGT, W4IUI, KE4HZM, WA0FGV (who sent holiday greetings to all), AB4WQ, KB5VTB, VE5RD.

Scott adds: We all know it is impossible to hear every station that is out there. If you are checked in via a relay and that station goes QRT, chances are slim that I will be able to hear you. I will look for another station that can copy you. If that does not work, hang in there. I will try you again later. Hopefully band conditions will improve in 1996. If you can't make the Sunday QSO Party at 2000 UTC on 14.068 MHz, give a listen later that day at 2400 UTC on 7.058 MHz. Scott will be trying another Party. Please help with relaying, don't be shy! And please remember to SLOW DOWN - this isn't the time to show off, it's the time to make all FISTS feel welcomed, not intimidated!

NEWS FROM ACROSS THE POND

[SORRY!! The first paragraph of Geo's "GREETINGS" got lost between Email and printing out here. He was talking about not feeling too well, and taking some pills prescribed the Dr....]

..... and within a couple of days I knew they were doing their job but either they or the pain killer robbed me of sleep with strange visions floating through my mind. If I turned over, they frequently flipped through 180 degrees and appeared in reverse form. Doc said that was interesting. It sounded like LSD and had I been at the mushrooms? I know I am on my way back but heck - I surely hope I never have to walk this particular road again. Hi. On the positive side, at the time of writing, I haven't been able to touch a cigarette for over a week - they taste like something unspeakable dreamed up by that Borgia woman - and the same goes for my regular evening pints of ale though I am not promising to continue my abstinence.

KATZ?

DH8?? DE GX0IPX = HW? KN. It was 599 both ways and just as I was settling down Tammy (pre-empting his walkies by a few hours) had propped his chin up on my leg when all hell broke loose outside on the veranda. Braveheart shot to the veranda doors and proceeded to berate the squabbling tabbies with ferocious growls and much barking but to no avail so I put the German station on the speaker and opened the door just in time to have a spitting bundle of brindle fur tumble through followed by and equally tempestuous black and white mouser. Braveheart sought refuge behind the armchair as I slammed the middle door to stop the combatants invading the whole house and attempted to evict at least one. Black and white was nearest to hand (or rather foot) and my slippered tootsies lifted it out through the door in a move that would have been admired by Bobby Charlton. I heard rather than saw it land on the trellis work and as I approached the brindled one, discretion replaced valour and it left pdq.

I returned to the rig in time for the KN from DH8?? and to my credit, I had got the QTH in the midst of all this activity but I had said 599 so how could I justify asking again for a name - SRI OM KATZBLITZEN - ? and still trembling somewhat, found it hard to believe when I heard myself asking "AGN NAME OF YOUR KAT?"

This brief episode affected a change in Tammy's behaviour and now, when I utter the magic word KATSSSSS, instead of the old display of Bro Ha Ha, he retires to the front room to seek solace from Ivy whilst somewhere in Koeln, a German station is convinced that all Englishmen are a tile short of a full roof.

TOPS CW CLUB

From the last Keynote, I have received only one letter in response to the question posed. The member enclosed a photocopy of his TOPS certificate and opined that things would be better left as they are with FISTS being seen as a natural follow on to the TOPS club.

CONTESTS

I am getting so many enquiries regarding additional awards and sprint type contests that it is unreal. Again I must ask for help in this respect. Any individual member (perhaps retired) with a sniff of experience or (perhaps more desirable) a locally connected group. There would be no problem with certificates etc and of course no shortage of publicity.

I would like to run a series of sprint type cumulative contests of perhaps 4 hours in duration and also there is ample scope for additional awards over and above the now easily obtainable Century.

Please give this some thought. My hands are more than full at the moment and any help would be more than welcome.

CHAT

Had an interesting 80m chat with one of our newer members who demands anonymity but says that as wireless op in a Lancaster Bomber (how many remember those graceful giants I wonder) he was credited with saving a whole flight of 'em in mid channel when their escort was overwhelmed by a squadron of ME fighters. To blazes with convention he said and sent the entire information on the key in plain language which resulted in the intervention of a pack of nearby prowling spitfires.

I watched in disbelief as the television reported temperatures of minus 19c up in GM land. Down in the more benign regions of West Lancashire - despite an elevation of some 750 feet plus - we dropped briefly to minus 9c and whilst the Western Isles and much of Scotland were suffering heavy blizzards and deep drifts, we got about three quarters of an inch. Many QSOs were made with GM during this period and they seemed to be responding to these conditions with a stoicism one would expect from a gravid mule. I would have been screaming blue murder and cursing the met office but the average response was "Oh well, it'll pass". Tell you what though, you didn't see too many of 'em wearing kilts on the TV shots. Hi.

A belated quote from Bill, G4VIJ: "Now approaching 76, daily CW keeps the grey matter in tune with the key"

If any member can identify the thoughtless individual who appears to occupy 14.0574 permanently with data xmsn could they please ask him to QSY to the data segment. He can't be getting much joy where he is. Hi.

OPERATING PROCEDURES

2M0ALU (James) asks about the "E N" which is so common these days. It is actually an exaggerated "R" popularly used with pump handles sent with no spacing but an exaggerated Daaaaaah. The habit clung but with the advent of el-keyers and such with no means of lengthening a dash, has reverted to the form you now hear. A bad habit - yes - but like all habits, hard to break. Hi.

GB2BP

This call is set to virtually replace the old GB2SM since the Science Museum's call is virtually silent. This permanent special event station was opened officially by the president of the RSGB in the two grand rooms allocated by the Bletchley Park Trust which were designed by G3LCS (RNARS); the occasion being recorded by the BBC, Central TV and local radio service. There are 5 FISTS members within the Milton Keynes & Dist. ARS which is deeply involved so a great prospect for cw contacts is there already. The call GB2BP is assigned the FISTS number of 1890 so you get an extra bonus when finding it.

During WW2, Bletchley Park was the location of much highly secret work. It was here that the enigma code was finally cracked and countless gadgets used by the allied forces were developed - items such as buttons with tiny compasses incorporated. For visitors to the country, this is a must and now, with the shack installed, it is a nice spot for even holidaying Brits to visit

LISTINGS

The purchase of the new A3 printer means that I have been able to release the original HPIIIP to Bob, GOFRL. Hitherto, his printer did not carry the same integral font (Line Printer) which is used for listings and it was necessary for him to photocopy a master copy which he picked up from me each month. He is now able to offer up-to-date listings. At this end, the new printer besides offering twice the definition of the HPIIIP churns out copies at four times the rate of the old one i.e. 16 ppm.

The same format for listings is offered - CALL v NAME (indexed on suffix), CALL v NUMBER (indexed on number) and CALL v NAME v NUMBER also indexed on suffix. This latter is set to reach four full A4 pages very shortly and if you are ordering this one then an additional 2nd class stamp (over and above the one which is requested for the first two categories) would be appreciated since separate pages are used (trying to auto feed a reverse copy is a little iffy) and, of course, it doubles the demands on the printer. All categories are complete listings including up-to-date US allocations.

OBSERVATIONS

Even the most hardened and critical of veterans must confess that these days, the standard of code from beginners and novices has improved enormously. Indeed, procedure has likewise taken on a refreshing face lift. Have our grouses about extended CQ calls been heard - certainly they seem to be getting fewer and much of this I like to think is to be credited to Issue 1/1996 those stalwarts who operate well below their ability and QRS to encourage. An in depth knowledge of Q-Codes and abbreviations is only acquired after confidence comes and these have come to be used on a regular basis so scorn not those who may perhaps appear pedantic by requesting "Please send slower". If we try to insist on the use of Q-Codes etc it will serve us ill since we will introduce mysticism where is need not be and discourage rather than encourage. A point to be made though is the assumption that you are the only station answering a CQ. I never grumble about this on-air but please stick to procedure and establish communication first with CALL de CALL(2). There have been a number of occasions when a weak, possibly DX response has been overwhelmed by someone who perhaps knows me well launching into a full blown over and scaring the weaker station off without giving me the chance to say QRX pse - YL1?? 339 BK. Another, pedanticism aside, is erasures following a simple and obvious error. Most ops will be forgiving of ANT DEPOLE accepting dipole as default.

Happily, most of my German friends tolerate my fractured Deutsch and rarely offer corrections but I have heard "G" stations who should have been on the bands long enough to know better, trying to explain the niceties of grammar to someone who has gone out of his way to attempt a QSO in what must be to them a very complex English language. I aint pointing fingers but they sure are not FISTS. Hi.

FINALE

Another month gone by together with another year. Have we seen the end of the arctic condx in this sceptred Isle? More to the point, are we witnessing an end the topsy turvy bands which rendered 20m dead by early evening and caused 80m to behave more like a DX band than that which we have come to anticipate? I wish you a happy, healthy and fruitful 1996 people and if those on the t'other side of the pond would switch on whilst getting outside their breakfasts a lot more Centuries would be abroad Hi.

73/88 folks and stay sober de Geo.
